It was a dark and stormy night and two men walked into a bar... No hang on, that isn't quite right, start again...

It was an extremely wet evening in the school holidays at the beginning of daylight savings. People scattered in all directions – Thailand for the sun, Ohakune for the snow, Napier for the children to see their grandparents – leaving a few hardy Rotarians at home.

Ever ready for a spot of adventure these few headed to the edge of civilization for dinner. All survived an enthusiastic welcome from 3 large dogs (and two rather disgruntled cats) and dined on ham, chicken and a few salads rather than the threatened pizzas. Cheese, crackers and an ice cream on a stick rounded off the meal. The enthusiasm with which the ice creams were received shows the child is still alive and well in all of us.

For those who didn't quite catch up with the extra visitors they were:

- My daughter Jen with husband Mike, 4-month old son Alexander and 2 dogs (thus the disgruntled cats). Jen had her appendix removed in the weekend and, as she needs help lifting the heavy baby, is home for a few days whilst recovering. Mike's back problems means he can't lift him either.
- Heidi and Kelly Vinsen. Their parents live opposite and, having grown up with our two children, they came over to see Jen. By one of those interesting quirks of fate the Vinsens are related to the McMillans. Please note that the fancy hairdos weren't actually due to the importance of a Rotary meeting but are because Kelly is a hairdresser and was experimenting.
- Kerry's daughter Fiona. Kerry's daughters bought a house further up the road two weeks back and Fiona went through teacher's college with Jen.
- Jo Howard, Patrick's wife
- Graham Foden and his partner Julie
- Martin Anscombe, an old friend and (currently) ex-Rotarian.

We enjoyed ourselves, and hope that all around us did too. The chatter and laughter seemed to indicate that everyone did.

As for other Rotary news – between drains and children I'm now officially two weeks behind.

Parting Thought (last week): John Riddell

I asked John to email me his parting thought last week. He said he would, but only remembered (at 2:18am on Friday morning) AFTER I sent out the Bulletin:

"I never joined the army because at ease was never that easy to me. Seemed rather uptight still. I don't relax by parting my legs slightly and putting my hands behind my back. That does not equal ease. At ease was not being in the military. I am at ease, bro, because I am not in the military."

Mitch Hedberg quotes (American Comedian, 1968-2005)
